

In the quiet of the night, when the stars begin to gleam,
A gentle breeze whispers secrets to a silent, drifting stream.
The moon watches over, casting shadows on the ground,
While the world finds its peace in a slumber so profound.